Project Description:

The global tobacco-free movement has started to shift from a tobacco control (reducing tobacco use) to a tobacco endgame paradigm, whereby the goal is to sustainably eliminate tobacco use and the factors that drive the global tobacco epidemic. Several countries, mostly high-income, have set tobacco endgame targets to achieve this goal by a certain year. Relatively little focus has been on low- and middle-income countries (LMICs), even though many LMICs have made significant progress in setting tobacco control measures and reducing tobacco use. This project will focus on tobacco endgames for LMICs.
